Prayer Panorama

How we view God determines how we pray. If we believe God hears and cares, we are likely to share our needs with Him on a regular basis. However, if we see God as being indifferent, we probably won't ask Him for anything.

How we view ourselves can also impact how we pray. If we believe that we are self-sufficient, praying to God becomes unnecessary. On the other hand, if we understand our hopelessness, we are eager to seek God's helping hand.

There are good ways of improving our understanding of God. One is through a careful investigation of nature (Rom. 1:20). Another is by examining the Bible.

Your attitude toward prayer may reveal your true view of God.

Whether our viewpoint is clear or cloudy, a little effort can improve our panorama. Let's go outside and observe God's creativity and ingenuity (Rom. 1:20). Let's read through the Bible this year with the aim of knowing God. Every story, every statement, and every word illuminates our God and how much He loves us.
