Remodeling

A few years back, I was part of a bathroom remodel at the church building. It generated quite a bit of excitement. The old bathroom stalls were difficult to get in and out of. By the time you negotiated your path around the toilet paper holder and handrails, you were left wondering if you could have waited until you went home. But that all changed. In fact, I overheard someone compare the remodeled bathrooms to a "nice hotel restroom." With a little remodeling, the bathrooms were renewed and inviting.

Remodeling our lives can also generate some excitement. Dying to self and being made alive to Christ in baptism is more exciting than a new soaking tub. Forgiving an old wrong done to you can be more liberating than losing thirty pounds. Focusing on the things in heaven leads us to living transformed lives that are pleasing to our God.

Do you need to remodel your spiritual life? Do you need to re-adjust your view of God or make room for love in your heart or increase your time in prayer or revamp your study habits or revive giving as you have prospered?

Is it time to remodel your spiritual life? Remodeling may well result in being a brighter reflection of Christ so that you may hear someone say: "You are like Jesus!"
